Christopher P. Day Principal

Christopher Day is a principal with the Firm's corporate and real estate transactions departments. A native to the Atlanta metro area, Chris attended the University of Georgia where he received his Bachelor of Arts in Economics in 2010. He then obtained his Juris Doctor and Masters in Business Administration in 2015 from Georgia State University.

Prior to joining the firm, Chris practiced as an associate and partner for a local law firm in Lawrenceville, GA where he practiced in real estate banking and finance, commercial development, corporate formation and governance, and mergers and acquisitions. Chris thrived in representing institutional and private lenders, business entrepreneurs and investors of real estate. He has experience in drafting, planning and negotiating formation documents, including operating agreements/shareholder agreements and joint venture agreements, as well as helping clients with the many related issues which stem from such business partnerships.

Chris additionally served as in-house counsel to an Atlanta-based real estate development and investment company, which has helped bolster Chris's understanding of the practicalities of owning and managing a business to better serve his clients' needs. Chris prides himself on clear and regular communication with his clients to better comprehend the specific needs of their enterprise. Chris's emphasis on detail and trusted advocacy for his clients help make him a valuable asset for Bodker, Ramsey, Andrews, Winograd & Wildstein, P.C.

While not serving his clients, Chris enjoys spending time with his wife, son and two dogs, and can be spotted around town at the many new dining institutions Atlanta has to offer. He is also a music lover and enjoys playing the piano as his lifelong hobby.
